

KEMA KAY

Actor, Rapper & Anti-Racism Speaker

Kema Sikazwe, also known as Kema Kay, was born in Zambia, and brought up in Newcastle, where his passion for rap, singing, and songwriting blossomed in a local youth project during his teenage years. Kema then transitioning into acting and landed prominent roles in acclaimed films like "I, Daniel Blake" and "Lady Macbeth." Eager to refine his craft, he became an associate artist at Live Theatre, where he wrote and performed his debut show, "Shine," garnering acclaim and touring to Edinburgh.

When not in the limelight, Kema runs a studio, providing opportunities for young people to record and conducting songwriting workshops in schools and communities, aiming to empower others through music expression and performance.
